

Welcome to

Sandringham

JEWISH CARE

Sandringham offers something for the whole community. Whether you live on site, are visiting a relative or popping into the community centre for a cup of tea with a friend, you can benefit from a unique range of services and facilities. Everyone is welcome.

Our state-of-the-art community hub is situated on the border between Hertfordshire and Stanmore, boasting landscaped courtyards and gardens, overlooking meadows, natural ancient woodland, with stunning views across London.

The site, which housed The Princess Alexandra Home for many years, has been redeveloped as part of a multi-million pound project to provide a modern, purpose-built space to serve the Jewish community.

The Ronson Family Community Centre sits in the heart of the community hub, which offers you a wide range of activities; an on-site synagogue, The Adrian Gordon Restaurant, a shop, wellbeing centre, as well as The Zalman and Ruchi Noé Centre for people living with dementia.

The community centre connects the Anita Dorfman House care home and Wolfson Assisted Living on one side and Pears Court Retirement Living apartments on the other, both with their own separate entrances accessed through the central foyer.

You can enjoy Piaf's Garden with accessible walkways, as well as the peaceful lake with viewing decks. Within the grounds, you will also find the secluded walled garden and horticultural centre, as well as a children's play area for young visitors.

We are proud that we are able to offer such a wide range of support, advice, care, and therapeutic activities, all within one incredible community in Hertfordshire and surrounding areas.
